Talila A. Lewis, J.D.

Talila A. Lewis is an attorney-activist whose advocacy and research primarily focus on creating equal access to the legal system for individuals who are deaf and for people with disabilities. Talila founded and directs the all-volunteer nonprofit organization, Helping Educate to Advance the Rights of the Deaf (HEARD), which works to correct and prevent deaf wrongful convictions; end abuse of and discrimination against incarcerated people with disabilities; and increase representation of the deaf in the justice, legal and corrections professions.

As the creator of the only national database of deaf prisoners, Talila advocates with & for hundreds of deaf defendants, prisoners and returned citizens; works on multiple deaf wrongful conviction cases; and regularly trains legal, justice and corrections professionals about varied disability-related topics.

Talila is a professor at Rochester Institute of Technology/National Technical Institute for the Deaf, and a recent graduate of American University Washington College of Law who has received awards for advocacy from numerous universities, Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton, the American Association for People with Disabilities, the American Bar Association, and EBONY Magazine, among others.

DeafCAN! is pleased to have Ms. Lewis as our keynote speaker November 1. Please also consider attending the workshop presentations on Saturday, October 31.
